favorable to the position of Great Britain and Germany, proposed as a com-promise that there should be an immediate increase of 5 per cent, with the understanding that, if the revenue derived therefrom did not prove sufficient to enable China to pay interest and installments of principal the duties should be increased an additional 5 per cent, or 16 per cent in all. This is the eventua increase proposition. Russia, apparently, when she found that there was no prospect of the adoption of her 10 per cent increase proposal, abandoned that and joined the United States in attempting to secure the acceptance of the suggestion for an eventual increase of the duties. The question recently arose as to whether the United States Government would take its portion of the indemnity bonds in American gold or English pounds sterling. The disposition of the Government is to take them in the form least burdensome to China, and it is probable that in the interest of uniformity the bonds will be expressed in terms of pounds sterling.

To Reoccupy the Rip Raps.

The War Department is making arrangements for the reoccupation of the Rip Raps in Hampton Roads, officially known as Fort Wool, which is opposite Fort Monroe. Some of the walls are to be rebuilt and a company of coast artil-lery will be stationed there. It was orig-inally known as Fort Calhoun and later its name was changed to Fort Wool, but it has been commonly called the Rip Rans.

Fort Terry's Area Enlarged

All that portion of Plum Island, New York, not previously owned by the United States has been purchased from Abram S. Hewitt and is now announced as an addition to the military reservation of Fort Terry. The reservation now comprises the entire island, except the light-house reservation of about three acres, at the western end.

committees Engaged in Arranging Details for the Reception of the Veterans -- A Large Delegation Expected From West Virginia.

CLEVELAND July 27.- The city Cleveland is determined to give to the veterans of the Grand Army a cordial welcome next month. On the evening of June 29 last, at a meeting of the Com-mittee of One Hundred and the subscribers to the entertainment fund, the Grand Army Executive Committee announced that the total amount subscribed to the entertainment fund up to that time was $3,611. Since then the Finance and Executive Committees have made no further effort in the direction of raising money, but nevertheless subscriptions have been received which considerably augment the sum then announced.

The Committee on Public Comfort will during encr mpment week, maintain a central inform tion bureau. Many other buat the railway stations and in other places convenient to the public. Resting stations especially for lidies of the organizations auxiliary to a of associated with the Grand Army will be provided, as will also package checking stations. A great many down town stores have already of-fered space for these purposes. There will be several hundred guides who will work in three relays of eight hours each, so that at any hour of the day or night strangers may arrive at any railway station or boat landing and be directed to the quarters assigned them. Several hundred ice water barrels will be stationed about the streets and replenished constantly. Several thousand seats will be placed on the sidewalks of the principal streets in order that the visitors may rest. These seats are intended primarily for the old soldiers theresalves, especially for any of them who may be fatigued during the grand parade and drop out of line before the procession has disbanded,

Gen. Leo Rassieur, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army, was in the city last week in consultation with members of the Executive and Parade Committees. He was much gratified at the report made to him that the parade would be short. He early insisted that the veterans ought not to be compelled to march more than two miles, including the march necessitated by formation. The parade will be on Wednesday, September 11, and the parade of the naval veterans on the preceding day, which is Perry's victory day. The

HARMONY REIGNS IN PEKIN

Negotiations Regarding Indemnity
Finally Adjusted.

Representatives of the Powers
Reach Satisfactory Conclusion
Russia Refrains From Pressing for an Increased Customs Duty.
Commissioner W. W. Rockhill has informed the State Department that all the principal points of negotiation upon the Chinese indemnity question have been harmoniously adjusted by the representatives of the Various Powers in Pekin, This settlement avoids a diplomatic crisis which was feared, and it is expected that the result will be summarized in a final protocol within two weeks. All of the Powers will doubless become signers to it.

The deadlock among the foreign representatives was broken, Mr. Rockhill's advices show, by the action of the Russian Government in signifying its intention of not pressing further at this time the question—of an eventual increase of the import customs duty beyond 5 per cent.

The other points of agreement of which the department has been notified by Mr. Rockhill in his despatch are summarized in final groups of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salicy of the State of Othio, and a soldler and a salic the association met last year, 250 were present.

Col. L. G. Foster, the corresponding secretary of the association, met with the committees the other day. It has not been customary for this order to meet in connection with Grand Army encampments, but this year an especial invitation was extended and accepted.

The Executive Committee, which has in charge all the work of making ready for the vast gathering the week of September 9, is composed of the following members: Gen. James Barnett, Chairman, Herman Bachr, Webb C. Bali, Col. Louis Black, John H. Blood, Arthur Bradley, Capt. Russell E. Burdick, Col. C. C. Dewstoe, Col, H. C. Ellison, treasurer; Gen. George A. Garretson, Samuel F. Haserot, C. W. McCormiek, Ryerson Ritchie, Capt. J. C. Roland, and Col. Alva J. Smith; ityerson Ritchie, director; Edward W. Boty, secretary.

In the opinion of Commander M. B.

In the opinion of Commander M. B. Bartlett, of the Department of West Virginia, the attendance from that State will be larger than at any preceding Grand Army national encampment. Accompanied by Past Commander J. L. Buckley, of Andrew Mather Post of Parkersburg, W. Va., where both gentlemen live, General Bartlett arrived in Cleveland last Tuesday afternoon. In addition to five hundred veterans for whom free quarters were asked, many of the West Virginia soldiers will stop with their families in boarding houses and private homes. There will, besides, be many excursionists from the State. The department, which will bring with it the Second Regiment National Guard Band of West Virginia, will have headquarters at the Forest City House, as will also the West Virginia Woman's Relief Corps. (From Chamber's Journal.)

The train slows down as it crosses the frontier and creeps gently up to the platform of the first station on Russian soil. Furtively peeping out of the window, you behold a number of stalwart men uniformed in the Russian style, and wearing the peculiarly Russian top boots. The polite conductor comes to the compartment and bids you get the passport ready. After a few minutes of waiting, during which anxiety is not diminished, an officer in sunart grey-blue uniform comes along, attended by a soldier with a wallet. He demands the precious document and, noting its forcing origin, casts upon

The utmost care is taken in the study and registration of these documents; every Russian must have his passport; every foreigner entering or leaving the country must have it, too. Whether native or alien, you cannot move about the country without the document; when you arrive in a fown it must be submitted to the local police; when you leave that town the police must endorse the passport with their sanction to the journey. The system gives the authorities the firmest hold over the people; and wise is the stranger who complies carefully with every part of the formality.

OLD-TIME CANTEENS. The System in Vogue at Fort Hays

Was Successful. Speaking of the army canteen, there as at Fort Hays in the early days an incident which gives some understan of its uses. Prior to 1869 the sutler at Fort Hays had not sold liquor, being restricted to groceries, dry goods, and ar-ticles of a similar nature. At that time the town of Hays, about a mile away. was the rendezvous of all the unemployed ruffianism in seven States. Every night or was the rendezvous of all the unemployed ruffianism in seven States. Every night or so one or more soldiers would be found somewhere about the town with their throats cut or their bodies mutilated. The commanding officer tried to enforce an order keeping the soldiers away from the town, but that was next to impossible. At last things became so intolerable that Cel. Anderson Nelson, of the Fifth Infantry, then in command—who, by the way, was a brother to the Gen. William Nelson kiled by Col. Jeff C. Davis at Louisville in 1862—determined to awy an unusual method. Sending for Hill P. Wilson, then post sutier, the colonel said: "Mr. Satler, are you prepared to erect n large amusement room, supplied with billard tables, a bowling alley, and other of the usual appliances? What I want you to do is to fix up a place as good as there is down town, where the soldiers can buy liquor and have their fun."

"I can easily fix up the place," said Wilson, "but, colonel, I don't believe I can handle a lot of drunken soldiers or prevent the suiter store from becoming a nuisance. What kind of shape will I be in when your boys come around on pay day, get full of gin and proceed to raise nuisance. What kind of shape will I be in when your boys come around on pay day, get full of gin and proceed to raise the devil?"

"Mr. Wilson," responded the colonel sharply, "you are assuming duties which scarcely belong to your department at this station. I am in charge of the police regulations of this port and I incline to the opinion that I know my duty. What I want you to do is to sell liquor to every man who comes to your place with the price, and just so long as he is able to stand up and drink it."

And here is the way it worked out: No man at Port Hays dared to get drunk and stand up and drink it.

And here is the way it worked out. No man at Fort Hays dared to get drunk and raise a disturbance under the eye of the commanding officer. Those who at first set out to abuse the privilege got such summary punishment that they never repeated the offence, Being able to find drink and games in the post, the men ceased their nightly visits to the town. And from the day that the "canteen" was opened until civilization came to the border no soldier was murdered by the thugs of Hays.—Kansas City Journal.
